Class Trips in...

Camp Utaba

Utaba was interesting! The bunks were small, the hikes were long, but we, eighth graders, made the best of it. Starting with orienteering we found questions on a day long hunt in the fields. Some took mud baths, others chose to get sick on the fire swing, or to fly off the teeter-totter, or play bumper pool.

While we got lost on the long day hike, overall it was a pretty good trip that we will never forget.

The first three days of the eighth grade year were at Camp Utaba

Right: The Eighth Grade Class of 2000. It may not look like it, but we're all here, we promise!

Below: "That's the best bath I've ever had!" smiles Grayson Campbell.

Right: "How do you like this Liz?" asks Mr. Etheridge. "They could be lighter!" says Liz Schackmann as Jared Long and Zach Downes wait to pull another person up.

Left: "Isn't it a lovely day!?" asks Anikka Hoidal and Stephi Graves.

Left: "Come on Mr. Jolley, pull harder!" yells Paul Long who dangles by a few fingers.

Above: "Ow, ow, you're on my foot!" shrieks Vanessa Wolf as the rest of the group pull Nate Boyd out of the tire swing.

Brighton Camp

The Seventh Grade Class had a lot of fun on their trip to Brighton camp. We did everything from lip syncing to rappelling down "the rock." Other fun things we did included; flying down the alpine, ropes courses, trust games, arts and crafts, and skits. We enjoyed learning about ourselves and our surroundings. It was a really fun trip!

Canyonlands Field Institute

With the upcoming trip to the Canyonlands Field Institute, students were bursting with anticipation. The five-day adventure consisted of river rafting, hiking, and exploring old uranium mines. Students helped cook their own meals, put up their tents, and clean up camp. Students went kayaking in rubber

"duckies" (rubber rafts), prospected for uranium, and identified desert plants. On the last day, students were sad to leave, hardly looking forward to the four hour bus ride home.

Performing Arts

The performing arts take great dedication and time.

They gather early in the morning and late in the afternoon to practice the music that gives RHSM its sweet background of sound. Whether it be the soothing serenade of Rowtown or the lively beat of the band, the music is great. The singing of the choir and the chiming of the handbells add a certain delicacy to our musical program. Congratulations to every one of our musicians and singers for their hard work!

Musical Theater

Over one hundred Middle School Students were involved in this year's musical theater production. This year's production, "Inspirations 2000," was written by the students with the help of director Traci Brand. Songs about inspiration were chosen from a variety of musicals. Students improved, danced, and sang for a Middle School and Lower School afternoon audience and an evening performance for family and friends.

Publications & Student Council

We're the students who give you The Link, Pieces, and parties.

Our publications and student council are a big part of daily life at school.

The Pieces staff meets twice a week to put together pieces of art, photography, poetry and writing, forming our school's literary magazine.

The yearbook staff meets every Monday to put memories of the past year on paper with pictures and captions.

The student council brings democracy to Rowland Hall-St. Mark's with elections and student opinions. The council's four committees, chapel, community service, spirit, and activities vote on issues that effect our student body.

Left: Lee Quinney, Meg Ellingson, Tori Searl, and Anna Parks prepare their propositions for the Middle School student council election.

Below: Anna Parks gives her speech to the Middle School community to try to win their votes.

Left: Tori Searl, Rory Connelly, and Willy Nevins served as our rotating Middle School student council president, vice-president and secretary.

We have Spirit and Fun

"Give me an R. H. S. M!"

Yes, we partied "like it was 1999" and into the new millennium.

Right: Tess Tallman and Meagan Norris are making music in the pep band for a pep rally.

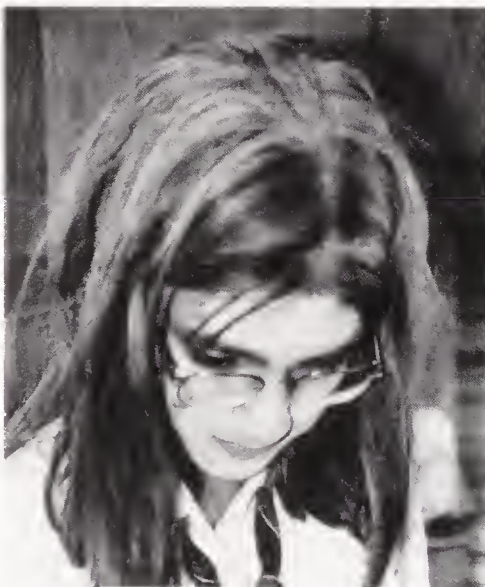

Here at Rowland Hall-St. Mark's, we like to PARTY! In fact, we've made our mark partying. We've been from Raging Waters to Classic 90s and back again. We've heard cheers to Lou Bega and made human pyramids. Why do we do it? School spirit or shortened after-school classes? Either way, there's still a lot of great Above: Kim Achelis, Lauren Witte, and the Lion (Erin Segal) enjoy their time at the Middle School basketball pep rally.

Right: Jaya Prasad is ready for trick or treating in science class.

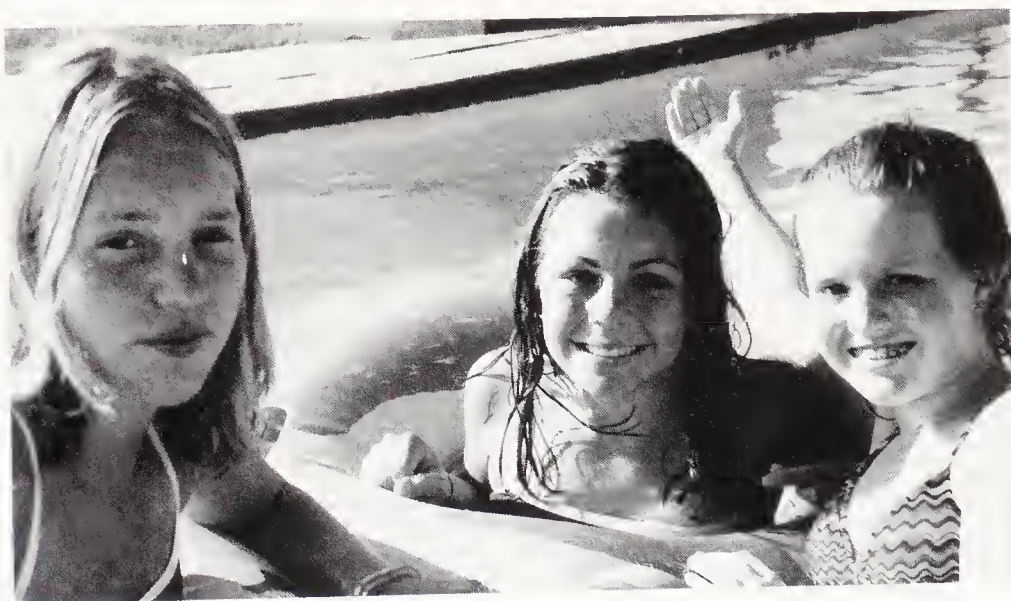

Right: Alex Whitby, Nick Badami, Alex Milne, David Wood, Chris Bossart, and Katie Maloney attempt to make a human pyramid at the Middle School pep rally. In the end, they did it!

A Spirit of Community

Chapel and community service are a really big part of the Middle School, plus they are a lot of fun!

Right: Lee Quinney, Adam Otten, David Evershed and Chris Bossart read a story at the Thanksgiving chapel.

Chapel and community service are a long-standing tradition at Rowland Hall-St. Mark's Middle School. Everybody enjoys community service, from donating food for Crossroads Urban Center to helping the first graders at Lincoln Elementary. Chapel is held monthly in the Commons at the Larimer Center. Raggs Ragan presents to school religious celebrations from around the world with help from students. Community service and chapel will always be a big part of our Middle School.

Above: Amy Bullock, Annie Barton, Travis Schlegel, Caitlin Shaw, and Chris Bossart read from the Prayer Book at Communion.

Right: Graham Heagy and Susan Sparrow load food into a truck to be taken to Crossroads Urban Center's food pantry.

Physical Education

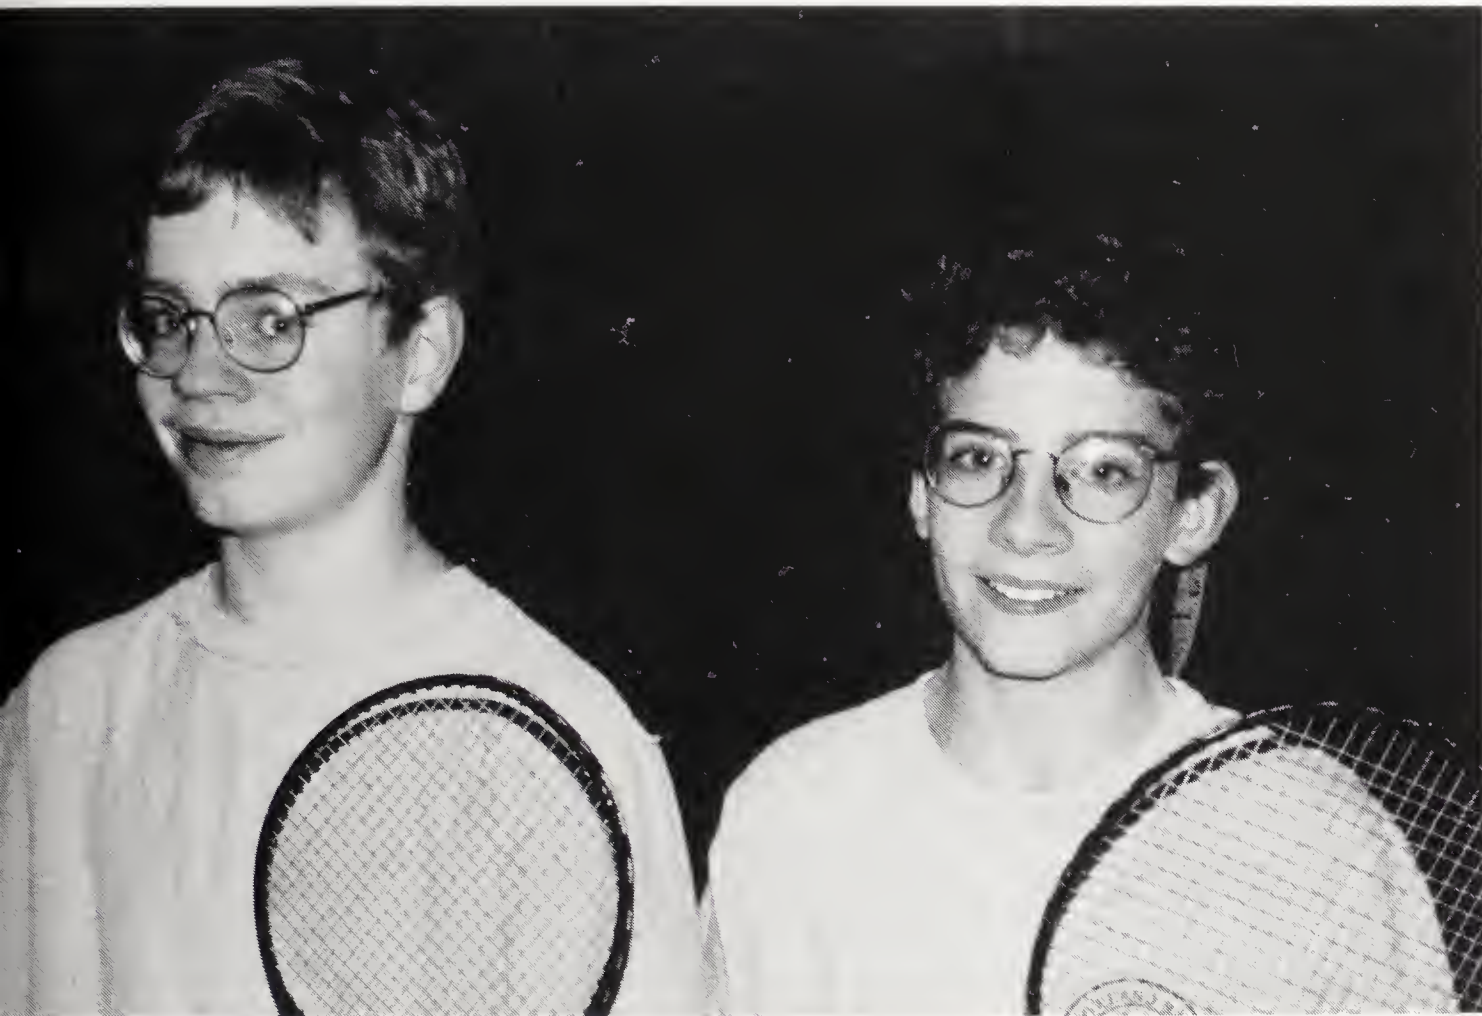

*Flag football,
weightlifting,
volleyball...
we do it all in

P.E. is a time to relax, to get out of a chair and desk, and to run around with friends. We play games, learn to work together and to support one another. We learn sports and games that many of us have never played or done before like weightlifting, butterfly in volleyball, or bowling in the gym.

The worst thing about P.E. is the uniform, especially when people forget to wash them over the weekend. But the best things about P.E. are that we are playing sports with our friends and the coaches are really nice.

Dance

Dance!
The sport that everyone loves!

A typical dance day starts out with stretching. Then we warm-up and get ready to dance! We create different dances by starting out with ideas from our stretches and warm-ups. Sometimes we improvise (make a dance up on the spur of the moment) to the music and then build dances on those improvisations.

To get into the Dance Company you have to try out and have a short dance ready to do. Everyone who tried out made it into the Company.

Winter Sports

*Excitement fills the air for

Everybody is frantically getting ready for different activities: archery, aikido, bowling, golfing, horseback riding, ice skating, swimming, sport climbing, skiing, snowboarding, and dance.

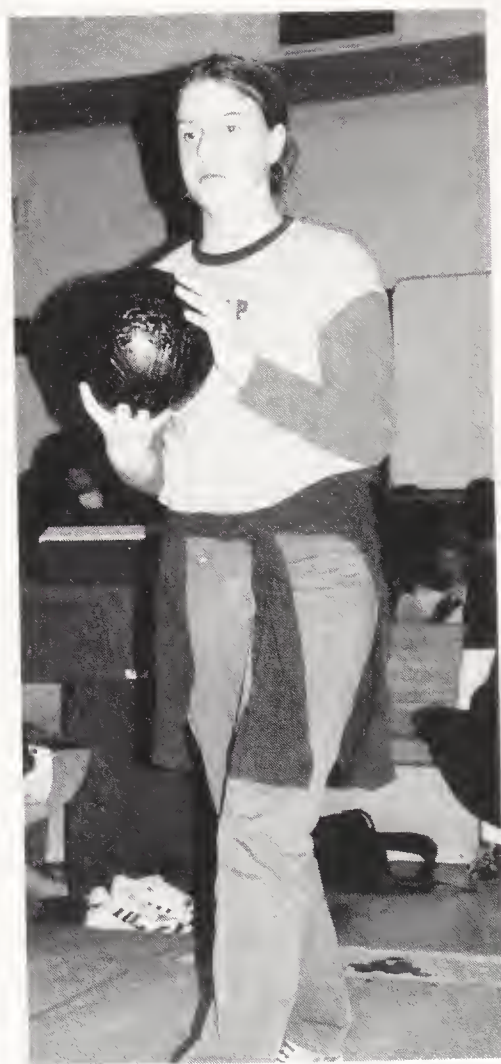

People look forward to Winter Sports because every Friday we have 25 minutes of each class and then we get to climb on the buses and leave campus. The students get to choose whatever we want to do on Winter Sports days and we do it! Since we get to do activities on Fridays, we get very anxious during class. When class is let out everybody rejoices and races to the buses. Everybody loves Winter Sports and that will never change!

Left: Lindsey Holmes, Josie Byer, Beth Sanders and Megan Jones get to take the lift up to the top of Moonbeam.

Spring Sports

As the yearbook was going off to the publisher, spring sports were just getting organized. Below are the students who hoped to be on our spring teams.

Kick, hit, run, catch... just some of the action in the spring.
